There are no protestors on Parliament Hill and there is less than 100 protestors observed in the Wellington, Elgin and Rideau/Sussex area.

There are no significant changes in our footprint in the core. There are still approximately 420 trucks in and around the road closures. It has been confirmed that all vehicles have been removed from QED, however NCC has decided to keep the main entry points closed. Local traffic can still access this roadway.

There are approximately 85 officers from OPS, OPP, RCMP and Cornwall police at Static traffic, QRT and mobile response/relief roles. Traffic officers continue in their enforcement on the periphery. PLT is making efforts to re-establish open lines of communication with the various convoy leaders. POU units will be deployed in staggered shifts starting later this morning.

Both Parliament and the Senate are scheduled to sit today. To date, there have been no issues with respect to access by elected and appointed members.

OPS members on static traffic intervened in an opioid overdose near their site early this morning involving a member of the homeless community.
